This International Search Authority has found 5 inventions claimed in the International Application covered by the claims indicated below:

This application contains the following inventions or groups of inventions which are not so linked as to form a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1. In order for all inventions to be examined, the appropriate additional examination fees must be paid.

Group I, claim(s) 1-47; 59, drawn to an ink jet head.

Group II, claim(s) 48-58, drawn to apparatus for supplying ink to ink jet nozzles.

Group III, claim(s) 60-63, drawn a method of ink jet printing.

Group IV, claim(s) 64-70, drawn to a method of manufacture of a print head and of an ink jet printer.

Group V, claim(s) 71-73, drawn to an ink jet print apparatus.

This application contains claims directed to more than one species of the generic invention. These species are deemed to lack unity of invention because they are not so linked as to form a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1.

In order for more than one species to be examined, the appropriate additional examination fees must be paid. The species are as follows:

Species 1: Ink jet print head without print head matrix.

Species 2: Ink jet print head comprising a print head matrix.

The claims are deemed to correspond to the species listed above in the following manner:

Species 1: Claims 1-37

Species 2: Claims 38-47; 59

The following claim(s) are generic: Claim 1.

1. This International Searching Authority considers that the international application does not comply with the requirements of unity of invention (Rules 13.1, 13.2 and 13.3) for the reasons indicated below:

The inventions listed as Groups I-V do not relate to a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1 because, under PCT Rule 13.2, they lack the same or corresponding special technical features for the following reasons: Group I is directed toward an ink jet head configured as a cylinder and mounted to rotate. Group II is directed towards an apparatus supplying ink to nozzles having micro-reservoirs associated with local reservoirs of the nozzles. Group III is directed a method of printing involving maintaining a static relationship between the printhead and print medium. Group IV is directed towards a method of a manufacturing a printhead and ink jet printer comprises providing matrix material and mounting the printhead. Group V is directed towards an ink jet print apparatus comprises an enclosure for the printhead and print region.

The species listed above do not relate to a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1 because, under PCT Rule 13.2, the species lack the same or corresponding special technical features for the following reasons: Species 1 has the special technical feature that the inkjet head is configured as a cylinder, which is not required for the ink jet head in Species 2.
